RAILWAY AFFAIRS.

The Northern Pacific Employes in Conference.

A Receiver Takes Charge of the New York and New England—A Statement of Railway Construction.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 27.—The North Pacific employes' representatives will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon to consider the latest developments in their contention with the railroad. They were feeling very bitter today about the injunctions that had been served on them, but were apparently very much at sea as to what action, if any, they would take in the matter.

Albany, N. Y., Dec 27.—Mr. Boardman, of the law firm of Tracy, Boardman & Platt, appeared today before Judge Wallace, of the United States court. He asked that a temporary receiver be appointed for the New York and New England railway. Judge Wallace, at his request, appointed Hon. T. C. Platt, one of the directors of the company, as temporary receiver.

New York, Dec. 27.—The receivership application was decided upon at a conference last night between Directors Platt and Prince, of the road, and their attorneys. One of the directors of the company said today: "There will be a lively fight if President McLeod does not put up the money needed to discharge the July interest. Both sides are prepared for almost any emergency and in such an event it will simply be a question as to who gets there first. It all depends on Mr. McLeod. If he raises the interest money, there will be no receivership. If he does not procure the money there will be one. The putting up of the money depends also on the holding of the controlling interest in the stock. If the McLeod party has the money it will put it up unless it finds itself unable to control the stock. That McLeod feels uncertain in regard to his standing is shown by the desperate efforts which he made yesterday to secure proxies to be voted at the stockholder's meeting. The whole trouble with New England is that for the past five or six years it has had no working capital. The president has always had to provide for all the deficiencies. Mr. Bostwick and Mr Parsons, each in turn had to do it, and now Mr. McLeod has a taste of the same medicine."

Chicago, Dec. 27.—The Railway Age will tomorrow publish its annual statement of railway construction, which shows 2,630 miles of new main line track laid in the United States in 1893. This is less by about 2,000 miles than a total in either of the two preceding years and is the smallest mileage added on any year since 1877.

Topeka, Kas., Dec. 27.—Receiver Wilson, of the Santa Fe railroad, left Topeka this afternoon to attend a meeting of the receivers to be held at J. J. McCook's office in New York city, on Friday, December 29. This meeting will formulate a definite policy to be pursued by the receivers.

INDIANA TEACHERS.

The Convention Which is Being Held at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec 27.—Today's program of the Indiana State Teachers' association, whose convention is being held in Representative hall, was a varied and attractive one. Prof A. R. Benton, of Butler university, conducted the devotional exercises, which were followed by musical numbers and papers pertaining to educational matters. A symposium was the morning feature, the subject being, "State of Public education," which was participated in by President Swain, of the Indiana university; E. E. Griffith, superintendent institution for the blind; A. C. Johnson, superintendent institution for feeble minded, and J. T. Charlton, superintendent of the reform school for boys. Arnold Thompson, of Chicago, read a paper on "The Law of the School." Tonight there will be an inter-collegiate debate between Indiana university and DePauw.

BIG SUGAR FACTORY

And It Will Bring 200 Polish Families to Omaha, Neb.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 27.—After about two weeks of negotiation a contract that was made last evening between Count Lubienski, representing a Polish syndicate, and the Commercial club by which a big sugar factory will be erected in this city next year. Count Lubienski agrees to build the factory and bring 200 families of Polish emigrants to conduct a model farm of 300 acres to teach beet culture. The commercial club agrees to take $100,000 stock in the factory. Count Lubienski will establish a smaller factory in the Elkhorn valley also. He represents a Polish emigrant society.

THE HOWARD TRIAL.

The Government Has a Strong Case Against the Prisoner.

Jackson, Tenn., Dec 27.—The defense in the noted Howard trial in the federal court is practically closed. The government will take a day or more rebuttal evidence. It seems to be the general opinion that the defendant has made his last stand. His New York witnesses failed to bring about the hoped for effect and the proof as built up by the government appears unshaken.

DURING THE WINTER

Indianapolis Will Care for the Families of the Poor.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 27.—The committee of citizens having in charge the care of the poor of this city have appointed canvassers by districts to seek pledges for the winter. A food market is opened. One thousand families, representing 4,000 persons, will be provided for.

CRANK DONJAN.

Case Laid Over a Few Days on Legal Technicalities.

He Will be Arraigned on Two Charges. Threatening Letters and Violation of Postal Laws.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Joseph Donjan, the letter-writing crank who sent epistles to Vice President Stevenson, Senator Mills and other prominent public men, was to have been arraigned in the police court this morning, but there is some delay on preparing the warrants, and the case went over. Senator Mills' son was in the court room, ready to submit evidence in behalf of his father, and the vice president's private secretary was also ready to be sworn. It has been decided by the district attorney to prosecute Donjan on two separate charges, one of forging the name of his father to a postal note order, and of sending threatening and scandalous matter on postal cards, or on the outside of envelopes through the mails. Each of these offenses is a felony, under the federal statutes.

CASE AGAINST CASHIER NOLLED.

Surprise at the Outcome of a Bank Matter at Lima, Ohio.

Lima, Ohio, Dec. 27.—The case against Frank L. Langan, ex-cashier of the defunct Lima National bank, charged with embezzling $4 000 from the Columbus, Lima and Milwaukee Railroad company, was set for trial yesterday and there was a great public interest in the outcome. Langan was present with his attorneys, W. B. Richie and Col. J. L. Price. B. C. Faurot, formerly president of the bank and the chief prosecuting witness, was also present. Prosecuting Attorney Motter arose and requested Judge Ritchie to nolle the indictment, which was done. This was a great surprise to the defense, which was ready for trial. Mr. Langan's friends have all along maintained that he would be fully able to vindicate himself at the trial and were anxious to have it proceed. Langan has been busy all day receiving congratulations of his friends.

HEDBERG'S GHOST

Stalks Through Camp at Fort Sheridan at Midnight.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—According to a local sheet one private has deserted at Fort Sheridan and others are in terror over stories that the ghost of Captain Hedberg haunts the post. Hedberg's slayer, Lieutenant Maney, is now in Louisville at liberty on $10,000 bail. The name of the alleged deserter is not given and the yarn otherwise lacks confirmation. United States District Attorney Milchrist denies intimations from Captain Hedberg's widow that the prosecution of Maney has been lukewarm.

BICYCLE RACE.

At 9:30 Waller and Ashinger collided. Both were thrown. Ashinger hurt his knee cap badly and was forced to leave the track. He will be off several hours.

BAD WHISKY

Was the Cause of a Shooting and Cutting Fight.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27.—Ten Polocks engaged in a shooting and cutting row in the western part of the city last evening, in which one man was shot in the back, and six other participants were more or less severely stabbed, none, however, fatally. An old feud between two families, revived by bad whisky, was the cause.

THREE DESTITUTE MEN

Attempt to Rid Themselves of the Burdens of Life.

DYNAMITE ANARCHISTS.

The Trial of Delboche and Vereira at Madrid.

Six Other Persons Arrested for Being Engaged in a Dynamite Conspiracy Outrage.

Madrid, Dec. 27.—The trial of Delboche and Vereira, charged with attempting to blow up the congress house at Madrid, and who were arrested April 4, 1892, is now in progress.

The two were arrested at the doors of the chamber with bombs in their possession and papers found upon the prisoners showed that the conspirators intended to destroy the senate house, the law courts, the offices of the council of state, the ministry of war, the royal palace and the bank of Spain.

The trial is likely to be protracted as forty-two witnesses are to be examined. The court will be carefully guarded in order to prevent the possibility of dynamite outrages.

Six persons were arrested yesterday evening upon suspicion of being engaged in a conspiracy to commit an outrage by the use of dynamite. It has transpired that the governor of Madrid, received two letters in which they threatened to blow up the opera house at which place the queen regent and Infanta were to attend a performance yesterday evening. The governor thereupon warned the royal family and they remained away. In some manner the news of this warning reached the audience and spread with alarming rapidity. The result was a panic.

The police showed considerable judgment while the audience was making its exit and succeeded in preventing any serious injury to anybody present. The scattering of the audience from the opera house spread alarm and excitement throughout Madrid and all through the night the wildest rumors were in circulation. The governor did his utmost to reassure people, but it was a long time before the public excitement calmed down.

SHOCKING AFFAIR.

The M[illegible]les Slaughter Cap[illegible] Wilson's Force.

The Brave Soldiers Fall Into a Neatly Designed Trap of the Wily King Lobengula.

London, Dec. 27.—A terrible disaster is said to have occurred to the scouting party under the command of Captain Wilson, which has been in pursuit of King Lobengula and which has not been heard from for some time past. Several South African merchants in this city received cable messages today announcing that Captain Wilson's force had been completely annihilated by the Matabeles, who are said to have cut them to pieces. The report is as yet unconfirmed.

CAUGHT A BURGLAR.

Four Pretty Girls Have a Novel Experience.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Four young saleswomen who occupied a pretty little flat in Thirty-fifth street, had a novel experience last night. When they entered their apartments, they found a bold, bad burglar in possession. The young women screamed discreetly and three of them ran away in search of a policeman, but one, Isabella Follenweider, was undaunted and heroically locked the burglar into a room. Then she, too, went to look for a policeman. In her absence the burglar became restless and with the aid of a skeleton key made a quiet exit with the valuables of the feminine quartet. Later there was a crestfallen heroine and a policeman using strong language.

KEANE'S MISTAKE.

He Used a Vaccine Point for a Toothpick.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Thomas J. Keane, the partner of "Parson" Davies, wanted a toothpick last night and finding a vaccine point immediately proceeded to use it. He did not discover his mistake for a half hour, during which time he industriously chewed the ivory. When the point was duly identified by the doctor Mr. Keane was a much scared man. Physicians, however, assured him that he would recover and today the Parson's partner is devoting himself to a strictly soup and food diet.

SUICIDE IDENTIFIED.

He Proves to Be an Officer in the Regular Army.

Athens, Ohio, Dec. 27.—It has been discovered today that the handsome stranger who registered at the hotel here several days ago as George B. Chambers, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and whose dead body was found in his room yesterday, a victim of chloral self administered, is Hobart Rider, first sergeant of the Seventh United States cavalry.

SWEPT BY FIRE.

Narrowsburg, N. Y., the Scene of the Conflagration.

Port Jervis, Dec. 27.—The entire upper end of Narrowsburg, N. Y., has been swept by fire. The following buildings were burned: Gutheil's hotel, barns and outbuilding; Uck's hotel; Green's dry goods store; Heinle Bros.' store; Decker's mills; Crocker's drug store; Kahn's dwellings. The loss is large and insurance slight.

A Grounded Steamer Floated.

Port Said, Dec. 27.—The British steamer Clan Matheson has been pulled off the place where she grounded yesterday morning and the canal is once more clear for traffic.

Fire at Van Wert.

Van Wert, Ohio, Dec. 27.—A $10,000 fire occurred in Van Wert yesterday. The meat shop of J. H. Fairfield was destroyed, loss $6,000, and the store of William H. Kimo injured to the amount of $3,000.

BRAZIL'S TROUBLES.

Portuguese Now Have a Grievance Against Peixoto.

Admiral de Mello and His War Ships Still Out in Search of the Government's New Gun Boats.

Pernambuco, Dec. 27.—The greatest mystery seems to surround the movements of Admiral de Mello and his war ships, the Republica and Aquidaban. All sorts of reports are circulated concerning him and he would seem to be a sort of "Flying Dutchman," for he is reported to be at several different points, some of them thousands of miles distance from each other. As a fact, however, nothing seems to be definitely known except that Admiral de Mello, with two or more war ships, started north on December 20, with the intention, it is presumed, of engaging the new Brazilian cruisers, Nictheroy and America. Since then nothing has been seen of the rebel ships, though all sorts of rumors are in circulation.

It is stated here that trouble is brewing between Brazil and Portugal, owing to the fact that the Portuguese minister at Rio de Janeiro, Comte de Paso d' Arcos, is detained at Rio de Janeiro by order of President Peixoto, although the minister is desirous of leaving Brazil on leave of absence. It is added that the Portuguese minister attempted to leave Brazil in spite of the order issued by President Peixoto and that the latter employed force in order to detain the Comte at the Brazilian capital. The affair is said to be likely to cause much additional trouble for the government of President Peixoto.

A GREAT EVENT.

The Blumenberg Concert Company Here Saturday.

This Celebrated Troupe of Musicians Will Give a Rare Treat at the City Y. M. C. A.

The Blumenberg Concert company will give an entertainment at the City Y. M. C. A. hall on Saturday evening and it will be one of the best ever heard in this city, for the company is famed throughout the music loving world. It is headed by the world's famous violoncello Virtuoso, Mr. Louis Blumenberg, so well known throughout the United States. The soprano of this company is no less an artiste than Mme. Caroline Ostberg, the prima donna of the Royal opera house, Stockholm, Sweden. Mme. Ostberg meets with great praise everywhere, and King Oscar, of Sweden, says for her, after presenting her with the order of the "Litteris,et Sweden" "It is rarely the case that I have presented this distinction to one who deserves it so well. Except yourself there is but one other person possessing it and that is Christine Nilsson."

Mme. Caroline Ostberg is one of the greatest dramatic singers before the public. Her career has been one continuous success. Upon her first engagement at the Royal opera at Stockholm she was assigned leading parts equally with other singers of prominence, and in 1880 she accepted the position of prima donna soprano at the "New Theater," Stockholm, being specially engaged for the title role in "Boccacio," which achieved the unprecedented run of 250 performances, the profits placing the affairs of the erstwhile bankrupt New Theater upon a solvent basis. Mme. Ostberg was immediately given a contract for five years, during which time she was restricted to light opera, but at the close of this engagement she was reengaged at the Royal opera as prima donna soprano, at a salary larger than ever before paid by that establishment to any singer.

Madame Palicott comes to this country under the highest possible auspices, with the enthusiastic endorsement of the French and English press, as well as of all the great French musicians, including Massenet, Ambroise Thomas, Reyer, Leo Delibes and particularly Gounod, whose protegee she is, and who composed for her and the pedalier piano a number of pieces of the highest musical value.

The troupe arrived in the city today and are now at the Randall preparing for the concert, which will be the greatest musical event of the season.

MITCHELL IN FLORIDA.

His Arrival Causes a Stir Among the Sports.

More People Greet Him Than Turned Out to See America's Prize Bruiser.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 27.—Charley Mitchell and his party arrived here today. A crowd of 1,500 people met the Englishman. It took two policemen, six bell boys and three porters to keep the crowd from crushing in the big glass doors at the hotel. The crowd that received Mitchell was larger than that which greeted Corbett, which may have been due to increasing interest in the fight. Mitchell received a score of newspaper men in his rooms. He says he weighs 196 pounds and will not take off much flesh. Tonight he appears at the theater here and tomorrow night in St. Augustine. Then he will begin training on the island just opposite town. Mitchell says his wife will not come to Florida. Friends of Mitchell say that his presence in Florida puts wings to Brady's bet of one thousand dollars that Mitchell would not enter the ring.

IN RECEIVER'S HANDS.

The Guaranteed Investment Company Taken by Surprise.

Thomas J. Hurley Appointed by the Court to Take Hold and Run the Affairs to a Wind-up.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—A receiver, Thos. J. Hurley, of the banking firm of J. E. McElroy & Co., was in possession of the offices of the Guarantee Investment company today, much to the surprise of the company's bondholders. Mr. Hurley received his appointment from Judge Windes last Saturday evening, but all the court attaches left to get ready for the Christmas vacation and the appointment did not become generally known. The company is the one whose affairs have recently figured extensively in the courts, the officers now having appeals pending on convictions for maintaining a lottery.

Sunday and Christmas day were legal holidays, so that Receiver Hurley was left in anticipation of his authority to execute the will of the court until yesterday. During the day the attorneys perfected the bond and procured a certified copy of the order of the court and went to the company's office with a deputy sheriff, who served the writ of injunction. Mr. Hurley then took charge. It is claimed that there was no minute of the proceeding upon the court clerk's memorandum, nor did the proper books of record show that such an order was issued. Attorney Whittlesley, representing the company, said today: "We shall fight this order of the court and I have no doubt but that we shall be victorious."

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Sad Death While Handling a Loaded Revolver.

A sad and fatal accident, resulting from the careless handling of a loaded revolver, occurred just across the state line, two miles from Payne, Sunday, at the home of Henry Martin, a prosperous farmer. His two sisters, aged eighteen and sixteen years, were examining a revolver, not knowing that it was loaded, when it was discharged, the ballet entering the heart of one of the sisters and killing her instantly.

Pittsburg Fire.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—The Pittsburg Driving park at Homewood is no more. A few days ago the property was sold under an order of court and it was the intention of purchasers to cut it up into building lots. Early this morning flames completed the work by totally destroying the club house and the grand stands. The loss will be about $15,000. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin.

A DEEP MYSTERY.

Tonawanda, N. Y., Excited Over a Mysterious Crime.

North Tonawanda, N. Y., is excited over a mystery which, if unraveled may develop a foul crime, not unlike that for which Dan Coughlin is now on trial before a Chicago jury. When the corpse of Harry Batchelder was examined by two physicians to ascertain the true cause of death, great was their astonishment to find paper instead of bowels, and sawdust instead of brains. Batchelder had died in Syracuse from the effects, it is said, of an accident on the West Shore freight on which he was braking. His brother went thither on receipt of information that Harry was dead, and brought the body home.

HARRY BATCHELDER

Before leaving Syracuse he made inquiries to learn the extent of Harry's injuries and the circumstances surrounding his death. Every one of whom he inquired was reticent, and all they would say was that he had been caught between two cars and died from a hemorrhage. The railroad acquaintances of Batchelder, however, asserted that when he was pinched his hand alone was hurt, and that not sufficient to warrant amputation. Accordingly the friends and relatives of the deceased brakeman determined on an autopsy at home, and Drs. Hoyer and Smith were engaged. On beginning their task they found that others had been before them. The trunk and head had both been opened and sewed up again. What was their astonishment, however, on reopening the trunk to find all the abdominal organs missing and the cavity filled with a bundle of newspapers. The brain had been similarly removed and the skull filled with excelsior sawdust. Thus the corpse had been robbed of every evidence to show the cause of death. The hand had been pinched and there was a bruise near the region of the heart; even the ribs near this bruise had been sawed out and were missing. Opinion varies whether a crime was committed by malpractitioners, which had been concealed by the removal of evidence, or whether Batchelder died of some peculiar injury so interesting to medical science that the organs were removed for study. The coroner at Syracuse will be called upon to explain.

A Michigan Tragedy.

Near Grand Rapids, Mich., the other day Myron A. King instantly killed his wife and then committed suicide by shooting himself. He was 55 years old and she 27. They had been married six years. His cruelty drove her from home, but she occasionally returned to see their 3-year-old son, of whom he retained possession. The double tragedy was deliberately planned. King took the child to a relative and the following morning sent for his wife to come and see the child. The wife came. He invited her into the house and then shot her down. He died a few hours after the shooting.

RADICAL SILVER BILL.

Senator Chandler About to Introduce One in Congress.

It Provides for the Adoption of a Single Standard, and That Standard Not Gold, but Silver.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Senator Chandler, republican, of New Hampshire, is about to come forward with a scheme looking to the remonetization of silver. The senator proposes very radical methods of bringing this about. He contemplates the introduction in the senate, after the reconvening of congress, of a resolution which he will advocate, asking the United States to invite all the countries of the world, eastern, western and southern, to attend a monetary conference. The new features of the supposed conference is that it shall not be restricted to the European gold standard countries. Moreover, the invitations to the conference are to contain a declaration of the United States that the purpose of the conference shall be the establishment and maintainance of an international ratio with the specific declaration added that if such a ratio cannot be agreed upon it will be the purpose of the United States to adopt a single standard, and that standard, not gold, but silver. By taking this extreme position, which is not advocated in congress, even by the radical silver men, Senator Chandler thinks the hands of the gold standard countries not trading extensively with the western world can be forced.

SENSATION IN COURT.

Mrs. Hassett's Charges Reflect on the Character of a Banker's Wife

Chicago, Dec. 27.—The hearing of the divorce suit of Belle Hicks-Hassett against her husband, William E., developed sensational features today. Mrs. Nellie Stone Slocum, wife of a banker of Nashua, Iowa, was named as co-respondent, and in letters placed in evidence it was intimated that attempts were to be made to dispose of Mr. Slocum. In one endearing epistle to Hassett attributed to the co-respondent it was said that Mr. Slocum would visit the world's fair. "He will be there ten days," the letter continued, "and if he does not vanish in that time you are no good." Plans for securing the banker's money, in the event of his death, were also revealed in the correspondence. Mrs Hassett says that, returning unexpectedly from a visit to Hamilton, Ohio, last summer she found the faithless William and Mrs. Slocum comfortably installed in her home. Hassett, it is said, has fled to Mexico.

WILL OBEY THE LAW.

Chinamen Instructed to at Once Register.

San Francisco, Dec 27.—The Chinese Six companies, acting upon the advice of their local and eastern lawyers, are preparing at their headquarters in this city a circular addressed to all Chinese residents of the United States counselling an immediate compliance with the residence regulations imposed under the McCrary amendment to the Geary exclusion law. The circular was authorized at a meeting of the Six companies last Saturday night. The work of registering the Chinese is not yet begun in this city, however, as the authorities at Washington have neglected to provide proper blanks for the registration.

ANNA WAGNER.

Her Case Will Go to the Jury Tonight.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 27.—The case of Anna Wagner, on trial for the murder of the Koster family, will probably go to the jury late this afternoon. Prosecuting Attorney Holtzman occupied the entire day in a final argument for the state. He reviewed at length numberless actions of Anna Wagner, her looks, expressions, involuntary statements and urged upon the jury that these were the evidences of her guilt.

GUILTY OF SWINDLING.

And Sent to Prison for a Term of Five Years.

Berlin, Dec. 27.—Herr Lowey, the banker who has so long been before the courts, has been found guilty upon fresh charges of swindling and forgery, and has been condemned to five years' imprisonment, and to be deprived of his civil rights for six years.

A Coal Merchant Fails.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 27.—Samuel Haliner, coal merchant and a director in the New England railroad has failed. It is supposed that heavy losses in this stock has brought about his downfall.

There will be a meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the city Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, for the purpose of making arrangements for the reception to be given at the rooms on New Years' day.

F. J. Gruber, the cigar maker, remembered The Sentinel composing room boys this afternoon, with a present of some of his fine cigars. Frank's cigars are very popular, and his "treat" was highly appreciated.

Tomorrow evening a communication concerning the deputy constables will appear in The Sentinel. It will be written by Prosecuting Attorney Colerick.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

The Long Looked for Consolidation Effected.

New Officers Put at the Helm in Several of the Secret Society Lodges of the City.

Tomorrow night Goethe lodge and Loyal lodge of the Knights of Pythias of this city will be united with the Phoenix lodge by card.

This will give Phoenix lodge a "boom" and it will have by the acquisition a membership of nearly 400, which will place it in the front rank of K. of P. lodges in the state. It is understood that an effort will be made to secure representation at the grand lodge. The consolidation leaves but three K. P. lodges in the city, viz: Phoenix, Fort Wayne and Summit City, the latter being the uniformed rank. There is no question but what both Goethe and Loyal lodge did the proper thing in consolidating with Phoenix lodge as both had small memberships and were not flourishing.

As the regular meeting night of Phoenix lodge No. 101, K. of P., fell on Christmas and will fall on New Years the same has been changed to Thursday evening following December 28th there will be election of officers. The following named were nominated at last meeting:

P. C.—A. Foster.
C. C.—Frank T. Allen.
V. C.—M. Rosenthall.
Prelate—O. F. Lindelof, J. H. Payne and Samuel C. Metcalf.
Mst. A.—M. W. Kemp and A. Z. Boswell.

M. Slater; master at arms, C. O. Miller; representatives to grand lodge, George B. Stemen and Theodore Frank; master of exchequer, John V. Buel; master of finance, C. Flack; keeper of record and seals, Theodore Thorward; trustee, William J. Vesey. Three candidates were given the third rank. M. C. Stanton installing officer for the year.

Queen Esther lodge, Daughters of Rebekah, will install their newly elected officers on the evening of January 5. The occasion will be a memorable one as Esther lodges from all the neighboring towns will be present.

REPEATED TONIGHT.

The Black Crook Company Will Appear at the Temple.

The performance of "The Black Crook," which was given last evening at the Masonic Temple to a good audience, will be repeated tonight. The play is one full of interest and attractiveness throughout as it is replete with spectacular effects. The closing scene is one of the best. The array of pretty girls in processions, marches and dances makes a picture of dazzling splendor, and they win applause with their each appearance. There are many interesting specialties, and taken altogether the play is one which gives a fine evening's entertainment.

MORE BURGLARS.

They Visit The Residence of Commissioner Stellhorn.

John H. Bass Loses a Valuable Robe—Dr. Barnett's Loss—He Was Very Mad.

Yesterday afternoon a thief stole John H. Bass's fine $95 lap robe. The robbery took place in front of the Wayne club. The robe was made of Galloway hide lined with broadcloth, and was valued at $95. Mr. Bass offered a reward of $50 for the apprehension of the thief.

Dr. W. W. Barnett was very mad last night. On DeWald street, in front of his residence, a thief stole the fine lap robe from his buggy, and in an hour or so, while the doctor was in Bloomingdale, another thief stole his $8 blanket.

Thieves also visited the residence of County Commissioner John H. Stellhorn, on West Creighton avenue. His brother's son had just bought a fine new $20 overcoat, and as it did not quite fit him he left it lying on a chair wrapped up, intending to return it to the store and exchange it for another one. The chair was standing near the window and the thief used a broom with which to draw the chair and overcoat near the window. The thief left the chair, but the overcoat is still missing.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Trustee Florentine Roy, of Perry Township, Badly Hurt.

He is Laid Up With a Broken Leg—A Butcher Suffers from Blood Poison—Other.

Florentine Roy, the well known township trustee of Perry township, is laid up and will be for many weeks to come. Sunday he was in his barn with a fractious young horse and received a fearful kick in the leg. He was knocked almost senseless and was carried to the house. Medical aid was summoned and it was found that Trustee Roy's leg had been broken. At last accounts the injured man was resting easy.

Dr. Duemling had quite a batch of injured people today. The first was Ed Fry, a Concordia college student, who fell against a pane of glass and cut a deep gash in his head. The young man lives near Indianapolis.

The second case is that of a young man named Passino, living on South Calhoun street. The boy is only fourteen years of age and was playing on the sidewalk when he fell and fractured his left arm in a serious manner.

William Haller, the East Lewis street butcher, recently cut his hand and is now laid up with a serious case of blood poisoning.

Fell Twenty-Five Feet.

At 11 o'clock this morning Nehemiah Gaskill, employed by the Fort Wayne Roofing Co., fell twenty-five feet from a building at the Horton Manufacturing company's factory. He was taken to his home, at No 95 LaSalle street, in the patrol. The man was dangerously hurt. He has a family and is a painter by trade.

PRAYER MEETINGS—At different city churches.
MASONIC TEMPLE—"The Black Crook."
TRADES UNIONS—Machinists'; Plasterers.
LODGES—A. O. U. W., No. 50; Improved Order of Red Men; Loyal lodge, K. of P.; Knights of the Golden Eagle; Concordia lodge No. 228, I. O. O. F.

TALKING of cranks, a man may be inflated by his own importance, but he doesn't want others to blow him up.

CHICAGO will have a new mayor tonight. John P. Hopkins, the newly-elected chief magistrate, will be inaugurated at the meeting of the city council this evening.

THE train robbery near Coffeyville, Kansas, close to the scene of the famous bank robbery of eighteen months ago, may disprove the proverb that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

STEPS have been taken by the citizens of Ossian to incorporate that town. A meeting was held the other evening and arrangements made for that purpose. There is scarcely a dissenting voice at present and the indications point to a speedy incorporation.

THE News and the Journal are advocating a greater water supply. Let us have all the water we need. Nothing is too good for Fort Wayne, and now is the time to do the work when many people are out of employment. We ought to have sufficient water at all seasons of the year to properly flush the sewers to prevent the spread of contagious diseases and for all other needed purposes.

A CASE was filed in the supreme court by the Logansport Natural Gas company concerning its controversy with the city of Logansport. A temporary injunction has been granted to prevent a raise being made in the price of gas. The company asserts that the city government has no power to regulate the rates it shall charge for gas. It is contended that in making the schedule the price has been lowered and that the city attempts to take the control of the business out of the hands of the company.

IT may be regarded as one of the established principles of trade that the so-called dull seasons are really the seasons when energy and enterprise will produce the most evident results. It is then that people have most time to consider what and where to buy. Those merchants who advertise when they are busy and cease advertising when business slackens are very apt to complain of dull seasons. The successful ones are those who do not allow any dull seasons in their business, but as soon as one kind of trade is done with turn their energies to building up another.

THERE is probably no more interesting place in the treasury department to sightseers than the immense vaults in the treasurer's office, where so much gold, silver and United States securities are stored, and the most frequent questions asked is the amount of money stored in the vaults. For a ready answer to these questions the office has prepared a brief printed statement showing the amount and description of the contents of each of the eight vaults. The figures presented show that there are stored in the vaults a total of $712,193,000,000, the part consisting of coin weighing about 5,000 tons. The following are the amounts and description of money in the eight vaults: Standard silver dollars $143,860,000; gold coin, $11,500,000; fractional silver, $333,000; national bank notes received for redemption, $3,500,000; mixed moneys received daily for redemption, $1,000,000; mixed moneys for daily use, $1,000,000; bonds held as security for national bank circulation, $250,000,000; held as a reserve to replace worn and mutilated notes, unfit for circulation, $525,000,000.

The Picture Tells.

The picture with the explanatory sketch under it has proven so educational and attractive that it has, within the last ten years, changed the whole force of modern journalism. But it has been in the past merely a skit or a personal description, or the detail of some event. Suppose the picture and the writing be utilized together, to tell almost all the world has offered, and suppose, additionally, that a great series of such combination be offered to the readers of a daily newspaper for almost nothing! That is what THE SENTINEL is enabled to do now. The explanation appears in another column. A great series of views—of a character never offered before in the history of newspaper enterprise—is put in the hands of THE SENTINEL readers at practically no price. It is one of the events in the story of all journalism, and is a striking illustration of what the daily newspapers may accomplish. Ten years ago, five years ago, or one year ago the thing would have been impossible.

The adornment of the home is not what it used to be. There was a time when what was artistic and great cost more than what is material. The engraving of any value was more expensive than the old horse-hair sofa, beloved of our ancestor. But art and science have made great leaps, and the beautiful work of art upon the center table is now within the reach of all who are refined enough or wise enough to secure it. THE SENTINEL offers an opportunity to secure such work at a price which is hardly to be considered, but which will surpass in beauty and value almost anything ever given to the public. But a little clipping from these columns, a little letter writing, and the end is gained. An advertisement in another column explains the details.

Arachis Hypogaea.

In France they call it pistache de terre. It is sometimes known also as the ground pea or groundnut. The Germans name it sweetly erdnuss. In the southern part of the United States it is recognized under the familiar name of goober, but most of us know it as the peanut, which we are at once extremely fond of and ashamed to be caught eating. At the same time this universal favorite is not a nut at all, but belongs to the bean and pea family.

The present year there will be produced in America of this underground pea nearly or quite 3,000,000 bushels. In spite of that, however, we still import peanuts from abroad. On the west coast of Africa they are raised in enormous quantity for the European markets. The superior chocolate preparations for which we in the United States pay such high prices because they are imported and warranted "pure" are largely made of ground and roasted peanuts. They know how to do these things in France.

In the northeastern part of North Carolina peanut culture has become so profitable that it has actually rooted out cotton and taken its place. The average yield of the crop is 35 bushels to the acre, but in northeastern North Carolina it frequently reaches 125 bushels to the acre. Add to this the fact that many planters there have from 100 to 200 acres down in peanuts, and the amount of earth bean food that North Carolina supplies to Americans, young and old, can be guessed. It is claimed to be a good brain food. Six months are required for the crop to come to perfection, and corn ground fertilized by land plaster is the kind demanded. It will only come to perfection in the southern states.

The peanut is a botanical freak. It starts off apparently like any other well conducted bean or pea, growing on a vine. But as soon as the pods are formed they become ashamed of themselves, so to speak, and duck down underground, hiding in the earth while they ripen. If one is forced to stay outside the soil, it will not come to perfection. The pods pull the vines downward and curve them toward the earth. Besides the extremely valuable peanut oil, used as a table oil, there has been invented a peanut flour for the use of fat people who want to get thin and must give up eating bread and potatoes. The nuts contain nearly 50 per cent of oil.

Huxley's Religion.

Professor Thomas H. Huxley's latest word, as given in his Romanes address, may be taken as the conclusions of the greatest scientist and philosopher of his time on the subject of moral training and teaching and the evolution of the race to a higher and better phase of existence. The professor declares there is no such thing as ethics in evolution. There is a great world soul, a cosmos, call it what you will, that works with fiery, ceaseless, reckless energy to reproduce and preserve the race. This implants in the breast of every living creature the instinct to preserve itself and get the best of everything for itself. To gain this end it will fight, claw, steal and crush and kill everything that opposes it.

This cruel, relentless monster is really "nature" as Professor Huxley understands her. To make progress in morality, kindliness, doing as we would be done by, a constant fight against this world soul is necessary. Such a fight must be made and made by every one who desires the finer, higher race development. He must go square against nature. It is a glorious fight. Professor Huxley believes with all his soul in making that fight.

Here are some of his beautiful closing words:

> The cosmic nature born with us, and to a large extent necessary for our maintenance, is the outcome of millions of years of severe training, and it would be folly to imagine that a few centuries will suffice to subdue its masterfulness to purely ethical ends. Ethical nature may count upon having to reckon with a tenacious and powerful enemy as long as the world lasts. But, on the other hand, I see no limit to the extent to which intelligence and will, guided by sound principles of investigation and organized in common effort, may modify the conditions of existence for a period longer than that now covered by history. And much may be done to change the nature of man himself. The intelligence which has converted the brother of the wolf into the faithful guardian of the flock ought to be able to do something toward curbing the instincts of savagery in civilized men.
> But if we may permit ourselves a larger hope of abatement of the essential evil of the world than was possible to those who, in the infancy of exact knowledge, faced the problem of existence more than a score of centuries ago, I deem it an essential condition of the realization of that hope that we should cast aside the notion that the escape from pain and sorrow is the proper object of life.
> We have long since emerged from the heroic childhood of our race, when good and evil could be met with the same "frolic welcome;" the attempts to escape from evil, whether Indian or Greek, have ended in flight from the battlefield; it remains to us to throw aside the youthful overconfidence and the no less youthful discouragement of nonage. We are grown men, and must play the man—
> Strong in will
> To strive, to seek, to find and not to yield, > cherishing the good that falls in our way and bearing the evil, in and around us, with stout hearts set on diminishing it.

A Girl's Idea of Football.

A girl describes from the young lady standpoint a football game between the Princeton preparatory school and the Freehold (N. J.) seminary teams. Her unique account is published in the Freehold Seminary Junior Journal. A bicycle race took place after the ball game was over, and the sharp penned young woman tackles that, too. She says of the football:

> Being a girl, unfortunately, I do not understand much about football. At first there seemed to be a glorious scrimmage, then a free fight. Next I saw a multitude of arms and legs waving wildly about in the air; then the wearers separated, and each claimed his own limbs. Then somebody kicked the ball, there was another grand rush, clapping, trampling, hooting and whistling, and I was informed that the first half was over.
> Then followed the second half. To my inexperienced eye it was exactly the same as the first, with the interesting fact added that "some one was hurt." He was not hurt badly—only enough to give added spice to the game. After the final rush was over, I was told the game was finished. The score was 24-0.

Below she describes the bicycle race:

> The scenes which I shall call "sideshows" were of vastly more interest than the game. Two specimens of "Young America" mounted on wheels were racing around the track. The exciting moment had come. They were abreast, when, lo, their wheels had locked.
> For a second nothing was visible save a cloud of dust, mingled with the groans of the fallen one. As the cloud cleared away, one had an indistinct glimpse of boy, bicycle and dirt. The last named article predominated. The wheel was bent nearly double. Boy unhurt. 'Twas very sad.

We gallantly uphold the honor of the ladies on all occasions. But granting their intellectual equality with men, there is one thing we would like to know. That is, in case of any disturbance in a closely packed throng, why is it always the women who faint, start a panic, trample upon one another and get hurt? We simply ask for information, but why do not the ladies keep their heads on and remain quietly in their seats till they find out what the matter is? Thus they would show even their intellectual superiority gloriously. Besides and don't forget it—999 times out of 1,000 nothing at all is the matter. A foolish false alarm raises the panic.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

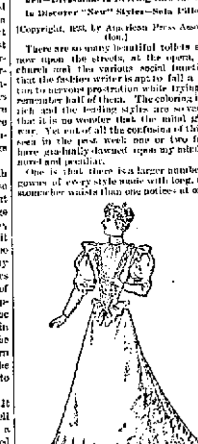

A SEASON OF EXTREMELY ELEGANT AND NOVEL COSTUMES.

Kate Leroy Disapproves the Popular Stomacher Waist—The Reign of 1830 Is Broken—Dressmakers Delving Into the Past to Discover "New" Styles—Sofa Pillows.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

There are so many beautiful toilets seen now upon the streets, at the opera, the church and the various social functions that the fashion writer is apt to fall a victim to nervous prostration while trying to remember half of them. The coloring is so rich and the leading styles are so varied that it is no wonder that the mind gives way. Yet out of all the confusion of things seen in the past week one or two facts have gradually dawned upon my mind as novel and peculiar.

One is that there is a larger number of gowns of every style made with long, stiff stomacher waists than one notices at once.

THE NEW STOMACHER WAIST.

The other is that almost every corsage has basque tails or postilions in the back, and not a few have draped skirts in apron fashion. As to the basque frills, points or coattails and postilions, they are certainly far prettier than the short waists, and draped skirts are more graceful than plain ones, but I do not think the long stomacher fronts have one redeeming point to recommend them to women. They are very stiff and therefore ungraceful, and they do not make a stout woman look thinner nor give a slender one a better figure. The darts that are generally placed in a dress front are omitted and substituted under stiff garniture of some kind.

I saw recently a very handsome dinner gown of oyster white peau de soie, made with a new plaiting of the same overlaid with a plaited frill of pale blue crepe de chine, which fell from beneath a line of scallops bound with silver castle braid and headed by small blue flowers worked in natural colors. The corsage had a frilled basque around the back and a stiff stomacher in front. This was cut in scallops and bound with braid, and that part cut away was filled in with blue crepe. The stomacher was seamless and altogether destructive of grace or ease of movement, and yet it was much admired.

Others of this style have the whole front of the corsage covered with braiding, embroidery or beading. Some of this is done over lace, which gives it a still heavier look, as the lace is frilled, and the trimming, whatever it is, is sewn over it. Some of them are cut out in front in pompadour style, with high Medici collars, though Elizabethan ruffs would be more appropriate. But then nothing ever is appropriate in fashion. It just is, and that is all there is about it, and we do not expect the unities.

The basques are finished off in the back as one prefers. There is a long postilion to one, which is bordered with a narrow pattern in fine soutache, and this pattern extends up the two side body seams of the waist. In front it is finished by a double row of buttons or by a vest inset if preferred. Another has a Louis XV coat, shaped with pockets on the fronts, and the opening in the back is turned up and faced with some contrasting color, which is also carried out on the rest of the design. The front of this model had a cutaway, with white satin embroidered vest. Another has all of the seams made so that at the waist line they are full enough to double under, forming plaits, and which set up somewhat after the manner of a spring collar. This latter style is very becoming to slender waists.

All this has a significance, and means that the reign of 1830 is broken, and it will not be many months before the distinguishing features of this fashion will be relegated to the past. Dressmakers are all delving into history to find something that can be labeled new. There was a morning or tea gown that recalled this fact to me as it was shown. The draped front and plain fur bordered skirt and the gigot sleeves were all quite natural, but there was a quaint sleeveless garment that is to be slipped on over it. This is like those we have seen pictured. I think they called them doublets in old days, but it made a picturesque gown out of what might otherwise be called a plain wrapper. This was lined with gold colored satin and bordered with fur.

I omitted to say that the garment as well as dress was of pale heliotrope cashmere in the new sergelike weave. It is on this quality that the pretty "peas" are seen mostly. This means that all over the surface are scattered little round tufts about as large as dried peas. This gives the goods a very rich appearance, as though there were two thicknesses, the upper overlying the other like a mesh. Really this is a beautiful fancy, and it is not so very expensive. There is little trimming necessary for such material aside from large buttons.

A very pretty and stylish costume for the street for a young lady is of sage green bourette and faille of the same shade. The dress is perfectly plain, but also perfect in finish and shape. There is a very full, wide cape bound with fur. There is a round collar of novelty brocade in Persian colors, bordered with fur, and to this is attached the lower part, with an eight inch hemmed ruffle of faille all around. There is a full ruching at the neck, made of bands of faille, and there are two long tabs of the same in front, reaching nearly to the feet, ended by heavy black silk fringe. The cape is lined with old rose satin.

I have noticed that silver and pearl gray silk, with combinations of black velvet, white lace or white silk, or all together, have been great favorites for elegant gowns at several of the most important social functions of recent date—notably, the opera and the dolls' reception at Sherry's, as well as at the late horse show. No richer or more refined combination has been seen. The all black and white costumes are rather too striking, but gray and white or gray with black and white becomes a thing of delicate beauty.

In some of the boxes at the opera the most beautiful new gowns of the season are displayed. It does not look as if times are hard, to note the blazing jewels and the splendid costumes seen there. One lady in box 11 wore a black satin duchess, with pipings and bows of scarlet. A young lady with her had a pink courtauld crape, the crisp material standing out in delicious folds around the girlish shoulders and arms. In box 23 was a lady in mauve satin, richly trimmed with fine silver castle braid, made in pronounced Louis XV style. In box 15 was a lady who looked almost royal in a black velvet gown lavishly trimmed with rich Venetian point lace. By her side were her two daughters, one in pale pink satin, with chiffon bertha and pearls, and the other in pure white silk, with puffings of crepe lisse around the neck.

Some of the ladies wore bonnets and some did not. The bonnets generally consisted of a sort of horseshoe of ribbon wound over wire to hold it in place, and with brilliant, gauzy butterflies, dragonflies or filigree aigrets of glittering beads. One bonnet had two viking wings set in rhinestones and pearls fastened to a jeweled band. There are strings to some and none to others, it being a matter of taste. But these evening bonnets are as brilliant as a queen's diadem.

I think it would not be out of place to mention the novelties in sofa pillows now while so many ladies are planning presents. The very newest is to have them hand painted or in oil colors with flowers or landscape or watteau paves. These pictures are set in the middle of the top of the cushions, and the cushions are made of satin, faille, bengaline and, in fact, any silk that will hold the paint. Around the edges of some are pinked out ruffles, the scallops being fringed. The underside of the cushion is always plain and of the same material as the upper, or of some lighter silk beneath, but matching in color. Some have one pinked, or a double ruffle of silk, with a frill of point de paris lace over it. Others have first a puffing ending in a double ruffle of some color differing from the color in the pillow. Some have a plain surface, but have each corner tied up like a rabbit's ear with a rich bow of satin ribbon.

There are very many velvet pillows—some painted—but more plain or embroidered, and these have a puffing and ruffle of satin or silk. I saw several in royal purple with puffs of lilac satin around them, and others of dark green satin. Others were quite plain, save for a large bow set on one corner.

HOME AND STREET TOILETS.

The under part of these had silk of the color of the ruffle. The handsomest of all were several of white corduroy velvet. These were made plain, with cord around them and heavy tassels at the corners and backing of different colored silk or velvet.

Many large silk cushions were covered on the top with braiding in vermicelli pattern in flat silk braid with picot edges, and some of these were 30 inches square, with double or single ruffles. Others were made with the shirred puff and ruffle. Generally these large pillows were made in pairs, but one would be blue or yellow, blue or pink, while the other would be of another color, both being made, braided and finished alike save for the color. Pongee silk was a favorite for this style. There is not much figured silk seen, but very many of the rich upholstery silks are used to form tops, with lighter for the under part. All are filled with down.

And here let me tell my readers. These down pillows in different sizes are to be purchased all ready made in cambric covers, and when the pillow is all done but one little corner the clever worker makes a tiny hole in the cambric and with a quill or straw blows it all up fat and full of air and sews the hole up tightly. That is how all these bought pillows come to feel so much lighter and more springy than those made at home. It is easy.

For hammocks the jean and other harsh cotton goods, including bedticking, are out, and bright oriental colors in canton flannel in rich bayadere stripes are "the style." These come in pink and light blue with rich dark colors in the stripes. These are plain and finished with tassels in the mixed colors. Some pillows for comfort rather than show are 20 inches square and of plain dark canton flannel, or the figured. For friends who have yachts the large cushions in bright colored cretonne are welcome gifts. These require no trimming other than big tassels at the corners. These even may be omitted.

The oriental rugs are seen made up into yachting cushions. The fringe is left on. They are also used as foot rests and are very handsome and durable.

Those beautiful Japanese and oriental scenes look well on sofa pillows and are to be purchased at a very reasonable price, and as they are so ornamental it requires little work to put them together. All sofa pillows made of light goods or silks may be of down, but the heavier ones should have feathers, or at least half feathers. Feathers are cheaper. I know of no present more prized than a nice sofa pillow, and I hope these few hints will prove useful.

OHIOANS IN BATTLE.

DESPERATE CHANCES TAKEN BY THE FORTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

It Led All the Rest In Bravery If Bullet Scars Are Any Criterion of What a Body of Troops Has Dared For the Cause.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

"IF KENTUCKY does not fill her quota, Ohio will do it for her," declared the Buckeye war governor, when the north was called to arms in 1861. He kept his word after months of patient waiting, when the continuous fighting in Virginia and Missouri showed the folly of longer delay. Robert Anderson, the hero of Sumter, had been installed as United States commander in Kentucky, with only a flag and a band of music to represent the majesty and power of the government.

The first regiment to march was the Forty-ninth Ohio, and, as may be imagined, its reception on reaching Louisville was an ovation of the kind that enthusiastic and half scared people render to their champions and deliverers. The regiment was escorted through the streets by a vast concourse of representative citizens and then regaled with a holiday banquet at the Louisville hotel. Such experiences are bright spots in the life of a soldier, and fortunately the scroll of the future cannot be unrolled above scenes like that to mar the joy of the hour.

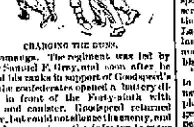

A thousand men shouted responses to the city's wild huzzahs, a thousand men sat down to her loaded banquet tables. What must have been the feelings of those proud hosts and grateful guests had it been possible to foresee that ranks which might never carry above a thousand muskets all told into battle would before the end of the conflict suffer quite a thousand battle wounds; that over 700 individual soldiers would be hit, over 200 receiving mortal injuries, while upward of 200 more would die from exposure and disease; that the final record would show for every seven men enrolled under the banner of the Forty-ninth one killed in action, for every four one cut off by bullets or disease, for every two one struck by the enemy's fire. So reads the record of the regiment, and it stands at the head of the Ohio troops in point of battle losses.

The Forty-ninth was a Seneca county regiment. Four hundred and forty of its members were born in that county and 700 were native Ohioans. It first met the enemy at Shiloh on the second day. Its losses there were not heavy, but twice during the battle it executed the trying movement of changing front under fire. So long as raw soldiers can keep the enemy in view they will usually remain cool, but once they turn their backs for a moment it takes the nerve of a veteran to face about again.

Stone River was the first great battle where the regiment had a chance to prove its mettle. It was in the portion of the Union line of battle which was surprised by an early morning attack and driven from point to point notwithstanding the most stubborn and heroic resistance. The two field officers present and all the captains of the 10 companies were killed or wounded before the gallant ranks abandoned the field. In one rally Lieutenant Colonel Levi Drake and Major Benjamin S. Porter went down almost together, leaving the regiment without a commander.

Drake's death was the ideal one for a soldier. An Ohio battery, known as Goodspeed's, became involved in the retreat and halted on a knoll behind the Forty-ninth, with its guns turned toward the enemy. Colonel W. H. Gibson of the Forty-ninth was acting as general of the brigade, and he ordered Drake to march the regiment back to the cover of Goodspeed's guns and then form a new line of battle. The noise of musketry and cannonading was so terrific that commands could not be heard at the distance of a few feet, and Drake signaled his instructions to the men by waving and pointing his sword. He took his stand near Goodspeed's guns and was calling upon his men to rally about him when the fatal shot came.

Goodspeed's battery played a part in the next brilliant deed of the regiment, which was on Thomas' famous line of battle at

CHARGING THE GUNS.

Chickamauga. The regiment was led by Major Samuel F. Gray, and soon after he formed his ranks in support of Goodspeed's guns the confederates opened a battery directly in front of the Forty-ninth with grape and canister. Goodspeed returned the fire, but could not silence the enemy, and the order was given the infantry to move forward and attack. The men responded at double quick, charging bayonets over the level ground up to the muzzles of the cannon. The Ohio boys laid their hands on two Parrott guns and turned them over to Goodspeed for prizes. Then they swept on for a mile and held the ground in spite of a counter charge by the Confederates.

On the same field during the crisis when Thomas proved himself the Rock of Chickamauga, the Forty-ninth changed front to rear and attacked a Confederate force that had broken through the line of battle near its position. Goodspeed's battery and the Fifteenth Ohio, lying on the other side of the breach, imitated the tactics of the Forty-ninth, and the three acting in concert drove out the rash assailants with heavy slaughter.

But the crowning day of gallant fighting for this regiment was at Pickett's Mills, Ga., at the opening of the Atlanta campaign. Meanwhile, the veterans whose terms expired had reenlisted, and the regiment, led by Lieutenant Colonel Samuel F. Gray, mustered about 400 soldiers, including original members and recruits.

At Pickett's Mills the old brigade, as it was composed at Stone River, Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, entered the fight as reserves to Hazen's brigade, which had been given the post of honor to charge a fortified position. The ground was heavily wooded, and the troops marched blindly forward many miles, not knowing the location or strength of the enemy's position.

Hazen's attack was repulsed, and the reserve brigade passed to the front unable to see the enemy or to learn any particulars of his line beyond that indicated by his steady fire of rifles and cannon. Colonel Gray formed the Forty-ninth and advanced through the woods, where the view toward the front was shut out at 150 yards by heavy timber and undergrowth. On inquiring the direction of the enemy from one of Hazen's officers, whom he chanced to meet, he learned that they held a strong position on a hill beyond a ravine which lay a few paces in advance of the Ohio line. The regiment marched forward into the ravine and found that the enemy's canister and bullets swept it lengthwise with murderous effect. After struggling through the ravine and up the slope beyond, the enemy's works came into view. The Forty-ninth halted under fire to better form its ranks, then moved forward at double quick, bayonet in hand, to within an average distance of 10 paces from the Confederate parapet.

At some points the Ohio boys crossed bayonets with the enemy over the breastworks, and many fell dead in the ditch beneath. It was nearing dark, and there were no supports or help in sight, but the brave fellows clung to such cover as they could find behind stumps and trees, and in places behind the enemy's breastworks, at arm's length from the foe. Darkness, the most welcome friend of a discomfited army, enabled them to retreat, carrying their wounded back to places of succor and safety. The casualties in that brief sundown charge were over 200, more than half the number in line. Forty-nine of the victims were killed and 21 died of their wounds on the field. The death list was 58, the highest suffered by any regiment in that battle.

Besides the four battles named, Shiloh, Stone River, Chickamauga and Pickett's Mills, the regiment left its dead on the fields of Liberty Gap, Mission Ridge, Morristown, Rocky Face Ridge, Kenesaw Mountain, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Nashville and Columbia. It lost 202 men killed in action, 14 of them commissioned officers. The total number borne on the regimental rolls was 1,468, and the percentage of killed was 13.7. The total of killed and wounded, 754; the number discharged by reason of disability from wounds and other causes, 616. The deaths, aside from those caused by wounds, were 161, and 17 of those died as prisoners of war. Five of the surviving wounded suffered the loss of an arm and two the loss of a leg. The ranks of the regiment suffered 842 gunshot wounds.

It is possible by analysis of these figures to tell approximately how many individuals who bore the brunt of hardship and fighting suffered for the cause. The number of deaths by wound and disease footed up 363, the number discharged for disabling wounds or disease contracted in service was 616, making 979 permanent casualties. The total enrollment was 1,468, but it would be unfair to deduct the casualties from that number because about 20 per cent of the enrollment should be thrown out for those who do not follow the colors. Some of the number may figure in with the deaths by disease and the discharged, yet the basis may be reduced to 1,200 as a fair computation for the real soldiers who suffered 979 permanent casualties. That leaves 221 survivors who followed the colors. But there are 551 wounded men to be accounted for, of which 202 appear to a certainty among the 979 casualties, and among the 616 discharged men there may have been 350 of the wounded, making, with the 202 killed, 552 accounted for out of the 754.

The fatal diseases doubtless carried off many who had been wounded, but of the 161 deaths from causes other than wounds not more than 50 would fall upon men previously wounded. Thus the wounded may be accounted for as follows: Two hundred and two fatal wounds, 350 disabling and leading to discharge, 60 incurred by men who died from other causes, making 612, and leaving 132 to be borne by the 221 soldiers who retained their vigor and clung to the colors. Allowing a wide margin for errors in these inferences, nevertheless the boys of the Forty-ninth Ohio went through "fire and blood" to save the Union.

Aestheticism In Birds.

There is no doubt that birds take delight in the gorgeousness of their own feathers, and the more brilliant their hues the greater the vanity they display. Conspicuous examples of this love of admiration and fondness of parading their finery are the peacock and bird of paradise. The decoration of its boudoir by the bower bird, as described by Mr. Gould in his "History of the Birds of New South Wales," indicates a decided and discriminative preference for bright and variegated objects, and evinces no small amount of aesthetic feeling and artistic taste in selecting and arranging them.

The bower is built of sticks and slender twigs gracefully interwoven, so that the tapering points meet at the top, and adorned with the rose colored tail feathers of the lean cockatoo and the gay plumes of other parrots, tinted shells, bleached bones, rags of divers hues, and whatsoever gaudy or glittering trinkets that may have pleased the bird's fancy.

Sometimes the space in front of the bower is covered with half a bushel of things of this sort, laid out like a parterre with winding walks, in which the happy possessor of the garnered treasures struts about with the pride and pleasure of a connoisseur in a gallery of paintings, or a bibliophile who has his shelves filled with incunabula and other rare editions. These objects have often been brought from a great distance and are of no possible use to the bird except as they gratify its love of the beautiful and appeal to what we call in men the aesthetic sense.—Popular Science Monthly.

Prejudiced Against Lady Fingers.

"There is one prejudice," says an English woman now residing in this country, "that I have had to overcome since coming to America, which was my antipathy to sponge cake and lady fingers, so often served here with ice cream. My associations with them are of the gloomiest sort. Lady fingers are served in all parts of England with light refreshments at funerals and usually go by the name of 'funeral biscuits.'

"In the Yorkshire dales if you are asked to a funeral and are unable to attend, they usually send you, with a memorial card, a piece of sponge cake and several lady fingers folded in a sheet of black bordered paper and fastened with big black seals. So American hostesses, when they know this, must not think it bad taste on the part of their English guests if they decline these cakes."—Chicago Times.

RAILWAYS AND SHOPS.

Open House at the R. R. Y. M. C. A. Reading Room.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention About the Depots and Shops.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A. held a meeting yesterday afternoon and decided to keep "open house" on New Years' day from 4 to 9 o'clock p. m. A committee of entertainment was appointed and other preliminary steps were taken towards making the affair very pleasant to all callers. While everybody is invited, railroad men are particularly requested to avail themselves of the hospitality of the ladies. There will be good music and refreshments in abundance.

MINOR MENTION.

Gus Freimuth, a machinist employed at the electric light works, is sick and off duty.

George A. Clifford, of Detroit, was the guest of Ticket Agent R. G. Thompson yesterday.

Charles Rice is taking a vacation. He is a blacksmith employed in the Pittsburg shops.

Conrad Rehling, boilermaker at the Wabash shops, was taken ill this morning and had to return home.

Conductor Kane has charge of Conductor L. M. Blakesley's train on the Pittsburg during the absence of the latter.

George Wilson, machinist at the Bass works, was taken sick while at work yesterday. He is suffering with la grippe.

J. H. Bass and Master Mechanic F. A. Rider went to Chicago this morning to look after some important business affairs.

Ticket Receiver J. C. M. Baker, of the Pittsburg, is the recipient of a complete toilet set from his railway friends.

Major F. M. Mauk, the genial Pittsburg passenger conductor, is still sorely afflicted with inflammation of the eyes.

Frank Hanson, of the testing room at the electric light works, is entertaining his father, who resides in Newark, Ohio.

The shopmen of the city will attend the entertainment at the Temple this evening in great numbers. The scenery is magnificent.

Henry Eix resumed work at the Bass blacksmith shop this morning after an absence, on account of private business, of several days.

Reuben Fronefield, of Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, has as his guest his son-in-law, C. J. Jenne, the electrician, of Indianapolis.

George McConnochier, of Chicago, is the guest of Charles Cousar, clerk at the Bass works. Mr. Cousar resides at 96 Butler street.

Walter Fox, of the Fort Wayne Model works, has been unable to leave the house the last two weeks on account of sickness.

Machinist F. J. Piper, of the Wabash, resumed work this morning, having recovered from his illness. He was sick and off duty five weeks.

O. L. Wilmott, stenographer for J. H. Bass, was taken suddenly ill this morning. His friends hope to see him around again in a day or two.

Mr. Munweiler, a former employe of the electric light works, was a caller at that establishment this morning and made fun for the "boys" awhile.

Frank Minnich and John McGowan, boilermakers in the Pittsburg shop, are taking advantage of a lull in work to look after some private business.

The machinery for the new table leg factory, which is being erected on South Broadway, arrived this morning from Michigan and is being unloaded today.

The Iron Car company, of Huntington, Pa., announces that its works at that city will be started up in a week or two, giving employment to several hundred workmen.

Chauncey H. Andrew died at Youngstown, Ohio, Sunday morning, at the age of seventy years. He was very wealthy and was the proprietor of great railroad and manufacturing interests.

Mrs. Boyd, wife of Assistant General Passenger Agent George W. Boyd, of the Pennsylvania lines, died last Sunday., Mr. Boyd's father, who resides in Indianapolis, is lying at the point of death.

There is considerable complaint among the patrons of the Pittsburg road at the lateness of the hour in which the Crestline accommodation reaches this city. That train is now due here at 9:10 p. m.

Harry Crosby, chief dispatcher of the Ohio Southern railway at Springfield, Ohio, and his assistants, George Wilson and Perry Harlan, of the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville freight office at Fort Wayne, were in Muncie Christmas day.

The clerks in the Wabash shops are busy with the semi-annual inventory.

H. Kucher, of Road Master Ericson's office, has gone to Pittsburg, Pa., on business for the Pennsylvania company.

Machinist James A. Ludington has returned to his duties in the Pittsburg shops after a visit to his children in Henry county, Ind.

P. Kelley, whose misfortune was mentioned in yesterday's SENTINEL, is a painter in the Pittsburg shops, and not a fireman, as stated. He is resting easy today.

John Kelley still continues off duty with a lame leg. He will probably not be able to work for some weeks. Mr. Kelley is one of the veterans in the Pittsburg boiler shop.

Frank Bartholomew, carpenter at Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory, has returned from Warren, Ohio. Mrs. Bartholomew remained in that city, the guest of her parents.

An order to hurry up work on the Wabash round house at Montpelier, Ohio, has been issued. It is the wish of the company to have the building ready for occupancy by January 1.

W. H. Babcock, father of Machinist O. L. Babcock, of the Pittsburg shops, will leave this evening over the Nickel Plate for Coopertown, N. Y., to visit old friends. He will probably be absent five or six weeks.

The new trip passes for the year 1894 have been sent out to the heads of the different departments of the Wabash road. The pass book is much neater in design and style of printing than any heretofore issued.

Conductor James Breen now gets around the streets quite comfortably with the assistance of a cane. His lame ankle heals very slowly, however, and it will be some time before he can resume his position on the road.

Louis Rastetter's buggy bow works are running ten hours per day with a full force of men. The log yard is also being rapidly filled and other preparations for a busy season are under way. Mr. Rastetter has on hands orders for over $15,000 worth of buggy material.

John P. Hopkins, Chicago's new mayor, who was looking after the interests of some of his friends at Washington for a few days, was a passenger on the Pennsylvania limited this morning en route home. This evening Mr. Hopkins will be installed into the office.

William Jackson, secretary of the Union Railway company, at Indianapolis, has served forty-three years in that position. When he first entered the service there were but three railways whose trains ran into the Union depot over the company's tracks. Now there are fifteen.

P. E. Hess, while working in the Pittsburg machine shop yesterday, was struck on the shoulders and back by a block and tackle, which became detached from a beam in some manner. He was painfully bruised, but no bones were broken. Dr. George C. Stemen is attending him.

Said an express man: "It don't look like hard times, when 50 per cent. more presents are sent by express this Christmas just passed than there were last year or the year before that. It is a puzzle to me. I can't understand it, unless there are a great many rich aunts with one foot in the grave."

The Electric Light company made three good shipments this morning. One of them was a twenty-five-light dynamo, Wood arc system, to the Southern Illinois penitentiary, at Chester, Ill.; another a 650 Slattery incandescent dynamo, to Greenfield, Ind., and a third, four sixty-light Wood arc machines to Little Rock, Ark.

Notwithstanding the general complaint of "hard times," the Chicago and Northwestern and the Chicago, St. Paul and Omaha railway companies have each declared a dividend of 3 per cent. on their preferred stock, payment to be made January 30. Considering the times this is a remarkable showing.

Jerry O'Connors, the Pittsburg blacksmith, is highly indignant at the notoriety he is given by some one using his name. The item in THE SENTINEL yesterday concerning the arrest of a man who gave the name of Jerry O'Connors, does not mean the blacksmith, who is a respectable man and is never guilty of any misdemeanor.

James O'Leary, section boss on the Pittsburg road, requested THE SENTINEL to express his thanks to the Daughters of Isabella and the Sons of Columbus for the aid and sympathy so generously given him during the illness and death of his wife. He also feels deeply indebted to the kind neighbors and friends for their services during the same trying ordeal.

Louis Kennaird, H. K. Mudd and Charles Rehling, students at Purdue university, are spending their holiday vacation with their parents in this city. The young men are taking a mechanical course and yesterday called at the Wabash shops and made sketches and measurements of "Fido," the diminutive shop locomotive, with a view of constructing one like it.

The new railway shops of the Big Four, now in course of erection at Bellefontaine, Ohio, are nearing completion. The buildings are constructed of brick with stone trimmings and foundations, and comprise a seventeen stall round house, a machine shop, blacksmith shop, tank and copper shop. The buildings are built on the sides of a rectangle, with an open court between. Several hundred men will be employed in the shops.

Dr. M. F. Porter removed a piece of steel from the eye of Machinist William Zimmerman, of the Wabash shops, this morning. The operation, while successful, was quite painful to the patient. Mr. Zimmerman was cutting a boiler stay bolt when the accident occurred. He will be off duty several days.

Circulars are out announcing the appointment of James P. Callahan as general foreman of the Baltimore and Ohio shops at Zanesville, Ohio. Three or four years ago Mr. Callahan resided in this city a short time and was employed in the east car shops. From here he went to Garrett City, Ind., to take the foremanship of the Baltimore and Ohio's car shops. He is a splendid mechanic, a good fellow and is possessed of the attributes which go to make a first-class "boss." THE SENTINEL predicts still further promotion for him.

The condition of William Boag, the veteran machinist of the Pennsylvania company's railroad shops, is very little, if any, changed. He continues very low with pneumonia with which he had been confined to his bed for over a week. His daughter, Miss Mary Boag, entertains grave doubts as to his recovery and it is the belief of his friends that the end of the excellent old gentleman is very near at hand. He is one of the oldest and most esteemed employes of the Pennsylvania company in this city, and for years has been one of the most faithful.

Cyrus Long is lying at St. Joseph hospital suffering with a fractured skull and compound fracture of the right elbow. His condition is very critical. Last evening Long got on eastbound Nickel Plate freight train No. 44 to ride down to New Haven. Instead of waiting until the train stopped at that place he jumped off at the State street crossing and was thrown headlong to the ground, his head striking a stone, cutting a deep gash on the forehead and temple and fracturing the bone. Dr. L. S. Null dressed the wound, and the unfortunate man was brought to this city on a Wabash train.

Out in a Blizzard.

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest attacks of pneumonia while in the northern part of that state during a recent blizzard, says the Saturday Review. Mr. Blaize had occasion to drive several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a severe attack of pneumonia or lung fever. Mr. Blaize sent to the nearest drug store and got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, of which he had often heard, and took a number of large doses. He says the effect was wonderful and in a short time he was breathing quite easily. He kept on taking the medicine and the next day was able to come to Des Moines. Mr. Blaize regards his cure as simply wonderful. For sale by drug gists.

BAD MEN NOW ABROAD

NOTED CROOKS WHO ARE ON PAROLE.

THE DETECTIVES WOULD LIKE TO SEE THEM.

James Dunlap's Career of Crime—Made Many Rich Hauls and Retired to Private Life—Other Noted Crooks Now Wanted.

THE ROGUES' GALLERY, presided over by Chief Brennan, of the Chicago police department, contains some rare gems in the way of pictures of well-known crooks, many of whom are behind the bars and others who will be in the near future. Accompanying this article are some likenesses from Supt. Brennan's gallery. They are of rogues now at large and for their capture various rewards are offered. The list contains some very bad men, a few with remarkable records of crime. James Dunlap, for instance, had a varied career of crime. He was in his time one of the most daring and skillful bank burglars that ever lived. Between 1872 and 1876 the gang which he headed stole nearly $4,000,000 in cash and marketable bonds from banking institutions in all parts of the country. Dunlap's band had a curious origin. In the latter part of 1867 a smart young man was convicted of grand larceny in Chicago, and sent to the state prison at Joliet. He was handsome and well educated, and because of his ability to swindle people he was called "Hustling Bob." His right name was Robert Scott. While at Joliet he came in contact with an old and hardened criminal well known to the police. This man was Tom Reilly, known as "Scar Faced Tom." Taking a fancy to Scott, he met him in Chicago after his term expired and introduced him to Dunlap. Reilly was not a bank robber, but he always declared that he could tell just what line of crime a man was best suited for, and he advised Scott and Dunlap to become partners in the business of bank burglary.

Dunlap was young and bright. He brought Scott to New York city and made him acquainted with one Connors, a promising crook always on the lookout for big stakes.

The trio formed the nucleus of the celebrated band of professional safe crackers. Soon after they robbed the Falls City bank in Louisville of $200,000. Because of the shrewdness of the gang the detectives were baffled. George, Miles, Leary, Edson and others were members of the firm of Dunlap & Co., and they robbed right and left. The Pittston (Mass.) bank lost $100,000 through the efforts of Dunlap and Scott, and then the great Northampton bank robbery occurred. Arrests followed, and Edson gave his associates away. Connors walked out of Ludlow street jail, and has never been seen since. "Red Leary" is dead, and the others have either reformed or gone to parts unknown. Scott and Dunlap were convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for twenty years each. Scott died of consumption ten years ago, and Dunlap was pardoned in December last, mainly through the efforts of Scott's widow. Dunlap was a soldier during the war, and when he was released found a comfortable nest egg waiting him in the shape of accumulated pension money.

Another noted bank burglar now at liberty is Isaac Marsh, who was released from Cherry Hill prison at Philadelphia a couple of years ago. He was a dangerous man in his prime, and took a leading part in the planning and execution of many noted robberies, but is now much broken in health, and the banks have nothing to fear from him in the future. Bill Forrester, alias Conrad Foltz, who was released from Cherry Hill at about the same time as Marsh, is a man much more to be feared than the latter. He has served terms for burglary and murder in Tennessee, Louisiana, Illinois and elsewhere. He has been arrested scores of times, and escaped punishment more often than he received it. He has robbed to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars, securing $83,000 worth of diamonds at one haul in New Orleans. He married a wealthy woman in Baltimore years ago, and when she discovered his identity she died of a broken heart. One of his most successful schemes was the breaking of the White Plains jail for the purpose of liberating Charles W. Bullard and Isaac Marsh, who, with Adam Worth, gagged an express messenger on the New York Central railroad and robbed his car of $100,000. The culprits fled to Canada, but were arrested and lodged in White Plains jail. Counsel failing to get them out, they engaged Billy Forrester to liberate them. Forrester, with others, succeeded in digging through an old wall, and before the work was discovered Marsh and Bullard were on their way to New York city. Worth established a thieves' fence in a fashionable quarter of London. He is reported to have amassed wealth, owns a yacht and lives like an English gentleman. Indictments still hanging over him serve as an effectual bar to his return to the United States.

John Larney, better known as "Mollie Matches," served his last term of imprisonment in Joliet. He has always been a frugal thief and is now well to do, owning real estate both in this country and Canada. He has spent eleven years in prison and still owes twelve years, having escaped on several occasions before his sentences expired. When a mere boy he disguised himself as a match girl, and during a public demonstration in New York succeeded in making collections from unprotected pockets to the amount of $2,000. It was on account of this escapade that he became known as "Mollie Matches." During the war he enlisted in no less than ninety-three Union regiments, successfully jumping bounties every time.

Billy O'Brien, alias Porter, and Frank Buck, alias "Bucky" Taylor, two very clever bank sneaks, are now doing Europe together. Their most recent achievement of note was stealing 3,000,000 worth of diamonds from a jeweler's shop in Zurich. They forced a door and went upstairs to a store room, from which, by piercing two ceilings, they got down into the shop by means of rope ladders.

Sam Perris, alias "Wooster Sam," has been at large for several years. He is a very cautious burglar and a very successful one. He was for a long time suspected of the Dexter, Maine, bank robbery and the killing of Cashier Barron.

Shang Campbell is another noted thief now at large. He has been associated at various times with train robbers, burglars and pickpockets. His last notable exploit was his effort to liberate James Foster from jail at Bangor, Maine. Foster was convicted of the robbery of Peter Bennett, a Newport, Maine, miser, from whom $32,050 was taken. Campbell and three accomplices were to start for Bangor from New York, with skeleton keys and saws, to liberate the prisoner, but the detectives secured a clew and arrested Lawlor with the keys and saws concealed under his undershirt. Campbell was already on his way to Bangor when the game was given away, and he therefore escaped arrest.

"Wes" Allen is another noted offender who for a long time has succeeded in keeping out of jail. He is a slim fellow, 55 years of age, sallow complexion, and has dark hair, mixed with gray. His left eye is gone, and at times he wears a glass one.

William Burke, alias "Billy the Kid," one of the most adroit bank sneaks in America, and Sophie Lyons, have for some time past been doing the country together. Sophie is the wife of Ned Lyons, a noted burglar now in the Columbus penitentiary. Burke is about 35 years old and handsome. He assisted in the "sneaking" of $10,000 out of the Manufacturers' bank of Coboes, N. Y., one day, but a clerk covered him with a revolver and he dropped the money. He has done time, and also effected his escape from several prisons. Sophie's name was Elkin, and she is known as the pretty daughter of 'Old Elkin, the Fence,' a middleman for thieves in New York city. She was the prettiest Jewess in the metropolis.

Her beauty, notwithstanding her wicked life, has not entirely faded away. It still serves her well in her blackmailing schemes.

"Lord Courtney," the English swindler, who has time and again found rich victims on his side of the sea, is now at liberty, and so is Fred Dhein, an expert jewelry thief by whom a salesman for Kock & Co. was relieved of $15,000 worth of jewelry and watches at Dayton, Ohio, in 1891. Dhein is now in Europe. There are many other professional criminals enjoying the sweets of liberty at the present moment, but those named are the stars of their calling.

SKETCH OF ADA REEVE.

Portrait of an English Actress Now Amusing Americans.

Ada Reeve, the clever English actress now in this country, was born in London, England, March 3, 1874. She is the eldest of the ten children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reeve, well-known professionals, her mother's stage name being Miss Saunders. Manager Frederick Wright instructed Miss Reeve and placed her upon the stage at a very early age. She made her first appearance as a child actress as Willie Carlisle in "East Lynne," at Newcastle-on-Tyne, she being at that time 8 years of age. Starting upon a four-months' tour with this company, she acquired much experience by reason of being required not only to play child parts, but, in emergency, to don long dresses and do general utility work. Having made rapid advancement in her art, and displaying remarkable capability, she was next placed in pantomime, and made her first appearance in this new field at the age of 9 years, at the Pavilion theater, London, playing the Old Man of the Sea in a production of "Sinbad," in which Bessie Bonehill played the title role. She continued at the Pavilion, playing children's parts, until the date of the first production of George R. Sims' play, "Jack in the Box," in which she created the part of the Italian boy, a role specially written for her by the author. This production occurred at the Theater Royal, Brighton, with Fannie Leslie as the star, and with Ida Heath also in the cast. She continued on tour with Miss Leslie during that season, and returned to the Pavilion theater in time for the Christmas pantomime, "Red Riding Hood," in which she played the title role. She then made a second tour with "Jack in the Box," and again returned to the Pavilion for the pantomime season, playing on this occasion the Genie of the Bells in "Dick Whittington," and being understudy for the title role, which she played for one week with great success. She was at this time 12 years old. At the age of

ADA REEVE.

13 Miss Reeve began her music hall career, playing her first engagement in this line of work at Gatty's Music hall, the Hungerford, at Charing Cross, London. Although she had become a favorite in the music halls, she had no intention of abandoning pantomime, and her new manager therefore accepted for her an engagement whereby she appeared at the Elephant and Castle, London, playing this time the title role in "Sinbad." Returning at the end of the Christmas season to the music halls, she appeared in turn at all of the prominent halls in the English metropolis until the return of the next holiday season, when she appeared in the Christmas pantomime at the Britannia theater, Hoxton, London, to which house she returned at the corresponding period a year later. Last year she was engaged at the Prince of Wales' theater, Birmingham, to play the principal boy role in "Aladdin," and at the termination of her present engagement in this country will return to England and at the same house will appear in the principal girl role in "Little Bo Peep." She contemplates returning to this country next season, when she will probably be seen in farce comedy.

SHARPS AND FLATS.

Luitpold, the prince regent of Bavaria, has offered a prize of 6,000 marks for the best opera.

Sydney Rosenfeld is engaging people in New York for a road company to produce the "Rainmaker of Syria."

Novara, the basso, well known as a member of Mapleson's and Abbey's companies, has composed an "Ave Maria."

Fritz Giese, the 'cello virtuoso, formerly of the Boston Symphony orchestra, has returned from Holland, and will in all probability settle in New York.

Vice Court Conductor Hans Richter was lately nominated court conductor at Vienna in place of Court Conductor Helmesberger, who is retiring on his pension.

Anton Rubinstein has lost his youngest and talented son, Alexander, aged 20. He was with him to the last at Lake Como, and the great artist seems absolutely inconsolable.

The Turkish court pianist, Dussap Pacha, receives £600 a year for his services, but he is temporarily suspended every time he plays a tune the Sultan does not care to hear.

Prof. William McLean, the veteran boxing master, has opened a school for sparring and physical culture at No. 1013 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

"What are your prospects?" asked a stern papa of a youth who wanted to be his son-in-law.

"I think," said the lad, "that the prospects are that you will say 'No,' but I'm not going to let that interfere with the match."—Once a Week.

A Cure for Croup.

When on a visit to Iowa, Mr. K. Dalton, of Luray, Russell County, Kansas, called at the labratory of Chamberlain & Co., Des Moines, to show them his six-year-old boy, whose life had been saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it having cured him of a very severe attack of croup. Mr. Dalton is certain that it saved his boy's life and is enthusiastic in his praise of the Remedy. For sale by druggists.

A STRONG TEMPTATION

A story is told of an Irish coachman who, driving past some harvest fields during summer, addressing a smart girl engaged in sheaving, exclaimed "Arrah, me darling! I wish I was in jail for stealing ye."

The coachman was infatuated by the charms of the lovely girl, and who would blame him? In like manner the readers of THE SENTINEL are infatuated with the magnificent and interesting Photographic Views comprising "Sights and Scenes of the World," which we are now offering them; and while they would not, of course, steal them if they could, yet they very quickly avail themselves of the splendid opportunity which has been placed within their reach. It is a rare chance and they appreciate it.

Today, when the bells of the city rang out the hour of 12, Miss Lottie Blakesley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Blakesley, became the wife of Mr. E. J. Ward, of Dubuque, Iowa. The ceremony was performed in an impressive manner by the Rev. A. W. Miss Edith Blakesley attended as maid of honor; Clara Kern assisted as bridesmaid, and Mr. William Repa as groomsman. The bride's gown was a becoming one of rose pink India broche with trimmings of cream lace. A bunch of LaFrance roses was carried. The house was beautifully decorated with roses, ferns and potted plants. After congratulations had been extended a very elaborate wedding dinner was served, which feast was pleasantly interrupted by a telegram from Mr. A. W. McLiment, superintendent of the street railway company at Dubuque, Iowa, extending congratulations to the happy pair. At 2 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Ward left for Marquette, Mich., the groom's former home, where they will visit for a few weeks before going to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and then to their future home in Dubuque, Iowa. Julian Hawthorne Going to Jamaica.

Julian Hawthorne is soon to remove his family and "lds lares" from the "House of the Seven Gabblers" at Sag Harbor to establish them for a year or two—possibly longer, if he yields to the fascination of the place as Stevenson has to the charms of Samoa—on the island of Jamaica in the West Indies. From there, using Kingston, perhaps, as headquarters, he expects to roam about with a freebooter's freedom in the old haunts of pirates and to make an excursion to the Sargasso sea, the gulf stream's dead center, where the derelicts congregate.

COLD WATER BAPTISM

IT IS NOT NOW POPULAR IN INDIANA.

SENSATIONAL SCENE AT A MUNCIE CEREMONY.

A Frail Young Woman Immersed in the Freezing Tide While Her Father Appeals to the Preacher to Desist—An Unusual Sight.

AT MUNCIE, IND., the other day, a young lady was received into a local congregation, under rather sensational circumstances. The young lady being in a very delicate state of health, her father quite naturally feared that the immersion of the ice-cold White river, which must be the form of her proposed baptism, would actually imperil her life, and, accordingly, endeavored to persuade her to forego the ceremony, for a time at least. Finding her unfilially resolute to dare the danger, and deaf to all his pleadings and commands, he called upon the clergyman concerned in the project, and having informed him of his daughter's physical condition, implored that the freezing immersion might be postponed. This second appeal was of no more avail than the first: the pastoral mind was clear as to the duty of considering the immortal soul before the perishable body, and the lady's father was informed that the baptism must and should take place on the ensuing Sunday.

Ready now to exert his fullest paternal authority, as a last resource the father undertook to prevent his daughter's self-sacrifice by measures of personal restraint; but the girl managed to elude his vigilance, and on the day appointed she and the minister, accompanied by numerous parishioners and surrounded by a motley crowd of spectators, presented themselves on the river's bank for the solemnization of the sacred ordinance. The preliminary exercises were performed, and the immersion was about to ensue, when the alarmed father came breaking through the throng of beholders and worshipers, and with great excitement of manner forbade further proceedings.

THE BAPTISM.

Not only were his protests again unheeded, but as they became more frantic while the clergyman and the convert advanced into the water, one of the members of the church who was present ordered the sheriff and city marshal, who were also present, to seize and hold the profane offender until the ceremony was over.

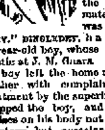

Thus seized and held while beholding what he regarded as little else than the killing of his daughter, the agonized parent could only continue his remonstrance verbally, and was joined therein by an elder sister of the baptized enthusiast.

During the ceremony he even begged the minister to desist until he could send for his lawyers, promising to make no more objection if they should decide that he had no legal right to control his daughter in the matter; but, although the privilege of sending was granted to him, the baptism was over and the dripping convert driven away in a carriage before the men of the law could reach the scene. General indignation is expressed by the people of that section of the state, and should any harm result to the young woman criminal prosecution will probably follow.

PREACHER IN TROUBLE.

Charged with Inhuman Conduct Toward a Little Charge.

Wernle Orphans' home, located adjacent to Richmond, Ind., is conducted under the auspices of the Ohio synod of the German Lutheran church, which embraces several states. Its superintendent is Rev. Mr. Dingledey, who occupied the pulpit of St. John's church. An investigation is now in progress that augurs very badly for him. Among the hundred inmates of the home was Edgar Burkhart, an 8 or 10-year-old boy, whose mother is a domestic at J. M. Guara. The other day the boy left the home and went to his mother with complaints of brutal treatment by the superintendent. She stripped the boy, and the marks and bruises on his body not only confirmed his story, but occasioned grave fears that his ribs had been broken by kicks. A physician's examination proved that no bones were fractured, although he pronounced his condition such as would warrant the charge of cruelty and inhuman treatment. The Humane society has taken up the case. Rev. Dingledey says the boy is very disobedient and acknowledges whipping him, but disclaims cruelty.
